

Flisvos Marina hosting the ARCTIC SUNRISE vessel of GREENPEACE

Arctic Sunrise is one of the three ships of the Greenpeace fleet. Before it was acquired by the organisation, in 1995, it had been used for seal hunting. In fact, Greenpeace had intercepted it once in the past, when it was carrying equipment to build a small airfield near a penguin colony on behalf of the French government. After the island of Syros, Arctic Sunrise visited Flisvos Marina from 6 to 8 April 2013. People were able to board and tour the ship and participate in the campaign supporting low-impact fishing to keep the seas alive.
